Hi Melissa

RE: Cancer Program Workforce and
Screening and Communication Funding Allocation

NACCHO has received funding from the Australian Government to deliver a national Cancer Program aimed at improving cancer outcomes for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people in areas of highest burden. This program represents a critical step in providing equitable, culturally safe, and community-led cancer care and support.

This program will strengthen the ACCHO sector's capacity to address health inequities through a strengthened workforce and health promotion to improve cancer care coordination, advocacy, education and screening services.

To strengthen the cancer workforce in ACCHOs, funding is being offered to contribute to the ACCHO workforce. At this stage, funding has been secured to contribute to the following positions:

- Health Promotion Officers – to raise awareness of cancer prevention and screening; and develop and execute exciting, tailored campaigns in community.
- Cancer Support Officers – to offer day-to-day culturally safe care coordination to Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people with cancer and their families.
- Cancer Screening and Communication funding – to support tailored, culturally appropriate cancer screening, communication campaigns and associated activities.
